Description: Fresh-cut Fundamentals is an intensive one-day training program designed for persons employed in the fresh-cut produce industry, from small local and regional produce processors to large businesses with nationwide distribution. The program, designed and delivered by produce technical experts from three nationally recognized Universities strives to inform industry professionals working in the fresh-cut produce industry about the underlying principles that govern fresh-cut produce quality while providing practical tools for application in the processing plant. The training is geared to adult learners being highly interactive and hands-on, with attendees sharing information and working in small groups throughout the day.
