History

Taypack Potatoes was set up in 1986 by George Taylor as a small trading concern from the family farming business to supply wholesale and retail outlets as well as the Scandinavian export market. The first washing line was installed 7 years later with the aim of packing top quality baking potatoes.

In 1995 Taygrow Produce was formed as a group of 14 growers who agreed to commit 1,200 acres to Taypack . This has now been expanded to 26 members supplying 4500 acres all of whom are 100% dedicated to Taypack.

In 1998 Taypack acquired the Asda account supplying into Grangemouth depot. This was followed in 1999 by Washington depot and Wigan depot in 2001

Present

Taypack is now a fresh potato packing business dedicated to supplying Asda from its state of the art, purpose built facility situated on the A90 between Perth and Dundee. Supplying 100 stores through 3 of the distribution depots, Taypack supplies 40% of the Asda fresh potato business.

With a turnover of £26m and an annual throughput of 135,000 tonnes Taypack is a progressive and innovative company which prides itself with being a leader in technological innovation and product development.

Taypack operates a full traceability system which allows coding of individual packs to identify the grower and field where the product was grown through to the finished pack on shelf.

Successful businesses require good people and Taypack has built up an excellent team of managers who are completely dedicated to the company and its future.

Future

Quality of produce and efficiencies of production and packaging have never been more important. Taypack recognise the need to adapt to changing eating habits and that to progress we need to provide the customer with what they want in the form of pan ready, convenient products.
